ABOUT

Welcome to P3Hub Ottawa.

Infrastructure investment by the public and private sectors is and will remain front and centre on the political agenda in Canada over the coming years. Whether it's addressing increased transit and housing pressures or the need to build climate resilient water treatment plants and roads, Canadians have made it clear they want value for their money and expect publicly owned assets to be well and properly maintained.

The public-private partnership procurement model was developed to address those expectations. Over the past two decades, independent research makes it clear that P3 projects consistently outperform the traditionally procured projects on delivery and budget objectives. They show a higher rate of being on-time and on budget.

But it's important to understand that P3s are only suitable for a fraction of the infrastructure projects undertaken by governments. So the time is right to ask "What's next" as we consider how and where infrastructure must be delivered for the next generation. We're looking forward to exploring those questions and new ideas with you over the next couple of days.

The Canadian Council for Public-Private Partnerships is pleased to present this two day event with the support of P3 Bulletin.

Mark Romoff President and CEO, CCPPP

After last year's successful event in Vancouver, this year we are hosting the event from the capital Ottawa, amid recent changes to the political landscape of the country. After a decade of stability under the Conservatives, new Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has assumed power and has made no secret of his vast infrastructure plans.

With the government looking to double federal infrastructure spend over the next decade, P3 will surely play a key role in these proposals. But with recent changes to the Building Canada Fund and a policy shift to widen options for the development of new infrastructure, the role of P3s looks to have changed in what has traditionally been the world's most potent market.

This event will highlight the latest issues facing the market and bring you all the information on how the public and private sectors are adapting to the changes under the new regime. We will bring you expert speakers from across the industry who will provide the latest insight into where the latest opportunities lie across Canada in 2016 and beyond.

Case study: CSE's New Headquarters – One of Canada's Largest and Most Complex PPPs is Operational

The Communications Security Establishment Canada ("CSE") is Canada's national cryptologic agency. CSE is one of Canada's key security and intelligence organizations, focused on collecting foreign signals intelligence in support of the Government of Canada's priorities, and on helping protect the computer networks and information of greatest importance to Canada.

When the Government of Canada undertook this challenging project, they turned to PPP because of the performance-based approach to building and maintaining critical infrastructure and facilities. The new headquarters has been occupied for 18 months and is supporting the CSE mission. This session will examine best practices for future complex projects.

Michael Komery Director General of Corporate Services Operations – Communications Security Establishment Canada

10:55 am

Keynote address: The Honourable Robert C. McLeod Deputy Premier and Minister of Finance – Government of the Northwest Territories

Looking broadly at infrastructure, Mr. McLeod will address key issues specific to the North, including: the cost of building in the northern territories, the length of the viable building season, and how the P3 model can be leveraged to build projects.

11:30 am

Panel: The standardisation template

In line with the new government's plans for infrastructure this panel will investigate the standardisation template for smaller projects, and for new sectors.

Moderator: Lindsay Krauss Senior Legal Counsel – HOCHTIEF PPP Solutions North America

Joey Comeau Senior Vice President, Capital Services – EllisDon Corporation

Chris McBean Director, Investments – PPP Canada

David Ho Senior Vice President of Procurement and Records Management – Infrastructure Ontario

12:20 pm

Networking lunch

1:20 pm

Panel: First Nations and climate change

This panel will look at the investment required to improve vital infrastructure for First Nations communities.

How can P3s play a role in delivering this infrastructure, and what are the critical factors that must be overcome?

Moderator: Jeffrey Frank Senior Director – Castlemain

Dale Booth President – Tiree Innovation

JP Gladu President and CEO – Canadian Council for Aboriginal Business

John G. Paul Executive Director – Atlantic Policy Congress of First Nation Chiefs

2:10 pm

Afternoon Keynote address: The Honourable Brad Duguid Minister of Economic Development, Employment and Infrastructure – Government of Ontario

The Minister will outline the success record of the AFP/P3 approach in Ontario and what the new relationship with the Federal Government will mean for the Province.

2:40 pm

Afternoon coffee break

3:00pm

Panel: Municipal Perspective and Pipeline

Some of Canada's largest P3s are currently in procurement, and have been led by cities and municipal authorities with support from the Federal Government. This panel will discuss these deals, what future projects may emerge, and how the standardisation template is going to encourage more effective procurement.

Moderator: TBC

Chris Swail Director of the Stage 2 Light Rail Transit Project – The City of Ottawa

Akli Ben-Anteur Water/Wastewater Projects Engineer – City of Greater Sudbury

3:55 pm

Panel: Innovation driving Canadian P3 projects

This panel will look at areas where the public and private sectors are driving innovation in new project models, as well as during the operations of projects on the ground. Where are we seeing innovation and how will this shape the market moving forward?

Moderator: Mike Marasco Chief Executive Officer, Capital Services – Plenary Concessions

David Damboise Senior Director – Hochtief PPP Solutions North America

R. Paul Tawfik Director – Johnson Controls

Jonathan Devonport Associate Director – Mott MacDonald Canada
